How to Complete an Arizona Spousal Consent

Consent of Spouse to Transaction

INSTRUCTIONS — KEEP FOR YOUR RECORDS. DO NOT ATTACH THIS PAGE TO YOUR DOCUMENT.

About this form. Title companies, lenders, retirement plans and business partners sometimes ask a spouse who is not on the title or account to sign a written consent, so the transaction cannot be challenged later.

1. Describe the transaction
   Be specific about the property, account or agreement.
2. Read the effect carefully
   Signing may give up marital or survivor rights in that property.
3. Sign before a notary
   Retirement plans that require spousal consent often require a notary. Bring a current photo ID.

Signing requirements: Signed by the consenting spouse before a notary.

After It's Signed

- Federal retirement plans (ERISA) may require their own plan form; use theirs when provided.
- Arizona is a community property state, so title companies often ask a non-signing spouse for consent.

Consenting spouse

Address

Spouse entering the transaction

Date of marriage

I am the spouse of the person named above. I have read and understand the following document or transaction:

Describe the document or transaction (e.g., sale or mortgage of property, beneficiary designation, retirement plan election, business agreement)

Property or account involved (address, account or plan name)

I consent to the transaction described above. I understand that by signing I may be giving up rights I could have in the property or account, including marital property rights, survivorship or beneficiary rights. I sign voluntarily, I have had the opportunity to consult an attorney of my choice, and I have not been pressured to sign.

This consent applies only to the transaction described and does not waive any other right I have as a spouse unless stated here:
